FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CareerPro Global, the parent company of www.militaryresumewriters.com and www.careerproplus.com launches new Certified Military Resume Writer (CMRW) Credential in partnership with Career Directors International

Melbourne, FL -- CareerPro Global, a leading industry provider of military and veteran resumes since 1986, has developed and launched the Certified Military Resume Writer (CMRW) credential, filling a critical gap in resume writer certifications. The CMRW mechanism optimizes and standardizes processes, procedures and techniques for military-related resumes, a first within the global resume writing industry.

“With over 20 years of military and veteran resume development expertise,” said Barbara Adams, President of CareerPro Global, “our team of resume writers was in an advantageous position to create a professional certification process. We wanted to raise the bar for our veterans.”

The CMRW certification enables both current and former members of the military to be assured they are receiving a professional-level product and the best value for the dollars they spend. The ability to select a credentialed writer elevates the purchaser’s options to a new level and provides an excellent criterion for making discriminating choices among the numerous writers who advertise their products via the Internet and other resources.

“Writers who receive the CMRW certification will have been through a rigorous education and testing process that guarantees they will be knowledgeable about military resume writing including the various resumix, federal and civilian resume types,” Adams said. “They will understand application processes throughout the federal government and civilian sectors, providing them with a critical edge in creating distinctive resumes for military and veteran clientele.”

The CMRW certification is administered by a credentialing team of CareerPro Global professionals, many of whom were instrumental in developing the comprehensive certification study guide and tests that define the CMRW.

“These are individuals who have already passed numerous industry-created exams to gain a wide variety of certifications among them, in addition to their stellar educational and experiential backgrounds,” Adams said. “It was natural that Career Pro Global’s team of expert writers become the first in the industry to obtain the CMRW and pave the way for other resume writers to follow suit.”

The certification is offered online through CareerPro Global’s partnership with Career Directors International, LLC, (CDI), the premier educational and credentialing organization for career professionals. “We chose this particular method of dissemination precisely because of CDI’s wide-spread credibility within the careers industry, which we felt was a good match for our own level of reputability,” Adams said. The credential is currently available through Career Directors International for resume writers who have at least three years experience working with military resumes.
