

Are You the World's Best Resume Writer? New Competition will let you find out!

Do your resumes generate multiple job interviews and numerous compliments from Recruiters and Search Firms? Do you consider yourself "the best of the best?" Then professional association Career Directors International wants to hear from you! CDI is sponsoring the first-ever contest to find the World's Best Resume Writer (WBRW).

The competition is open to any English-writing resume writer in the world, and you do not have to be a CDI member or certified resume writer to participate.

CDI will present awards to the top three resume writers (first, second, and third place) worldwide. "This is the first competition of its kind designed to allow resume writers to showcase their talents and demonstrate their expertise before a panel of top industry representatives," says CDI President Laura DeCarlo. "Further, you don't have to be a certified resume writer, or member of Career Directors to enter. Attaining this accolade will truly allow you to benchmark that you are the best of the best worldwide."

Entries will be judged by a panel consisting of human resource directors, senior recruiters, occupational development specialists, and several certified resume writers. The panel includes:
